We have now placed our soap with nearly all the grocers in the city, with full instructions on the wrappers, and ask for it a trial. We guarantee it in all respects to the extent of a return of the purchase price if any person can show that we have misrepresented it in any particular.

Another Battle

General Middleton Again Gives Battle to the Rebels.

The Result so Far Understood to be a Drawn Fight.

The Northcote Shells and Fired upon from Both Sides of the River.

Gallant Conduct of the Volunteers.

Special Dispatches to THE TIMES.

Particulars of the Fight.

BATOCHE CROSSING, VIA CLARKE'S CROSSING, May 10.—We left camp at six this morning, leaving all the tents and supplies behind. All marched seven miles without seeing or hearing anything of the enemy. The morning was bright and warm. Suddenly there came the sound of the steamer's whistle, blowing continuously. As we drew near we heard the sound of heavy firing in the direction of the river. Our line of march was as follows: First, Bolton's scouts, accompanied by Gatling guns; the Grenadiers formed the advance guard, with a battery of the Ninetieth Battalion supporting them, with the Winnipeg and Midland battalion in reserve. Scouts and Gatling guns were then pushed rapidly ahead, and soon came upon two houses near the bank of the river, which here is very precipitous, where an advanced party of the rebels were met, and who fired and retired behind the house towards the hollow.

THE GATLING GUN

was brought to bear on them, when they ran into the house near the church of St. Laurent, which was also fired on by the Gatling gun when they ran out into the brush. A Battery by this time came up with a rush and got into position, sending several shells after the rebels. The Grenadiers now advanced, marching steadily into action and deployed into line continuing to advance in skirmishing order till the church was reached, when a priest came out of the house waving a white flag. General Middleton and staff advanced and shook hands, when three other priests and five Sisters of Charity came out. A number of half-breed children were also inside in charge of the sisters. Father Moulin informed them that the steamer arrived at a point a little above Batouche at 5.30 a. m. The rebels immediately commenced firing on it from both banks. It shortly after but swung clear again, and just before our arrival passed the crossing. He also said the rebels had six killed and twelve wounded at Fish Creek. We just got a glimpse of the steamer down the river. She must have had a hard time. The fire and smoke stack is gone. The Grenadiers advanced, skirmishing through the brush on the right of the trail, the Gatling being pushed forward down the declivity towards Batouche, now plainly visible in the valley below. Here the battery unlimbered on top of a ridge, sending shells into them, and whilst doing so were almost surprised by a number of rebels, who crept up through the bush, not being discovered until twenty yards distant. They made a rush for the guns, firing and yelling as they ran. Captain Howard, who operated the Gatling gun, saw the danger. He ran the gun a couple of yards in front of the battery, and, opening fire, literally mowed the rebels down. Those remaining turned and ran from it, reaching the shelter of the bush. These opened fire again, and Howard's escape from injury was something marvelous.

BULLETS FLYING ALL ROUND HIM.

He gallantly maintained his position, and the rebels, unable to withstand the terrible fire, returned to the pits constructed in the ravine running from the river. Our line was now as follows: 41st and 15th Companies, of Midland, with Winnipeg A battery, supported by E and C Companies of Ninetieth in centre, and extending across to right to where the Grenadiers were, supported on the left by B and D of Ninetieth, on right centre by F and A Companies. The A battery occupied the left centre, afterwards returning to right arm.

CAPT. FRENCH AND HIS SCOUTS.

11 a. m.—As I write, Capt. French, with his scouts and part of the dismounted men of A battery, are drawn in a ravine, firing now continuously on left and centre, but scattered on right. After a gallant but vain effort to drive the rebels from the rifle pits the French scouts and battery men retired. The wounded are now coming in. At noon the list of

KILLED AND WOUNDED

On our side is as follows: A battery, Cunner Phillips, shot through the stomach while in the ravine, died while being brought in. Thomas J. Stout, run over by carriage not fatal. Chappatier shot through both legs, one fractured. Guinass Fairbanks and Toohy, also shot in leg. Grenadiers, Capt. Mason, No. 2 company, slight wound in thigh. French's scouts, R. Cook, slightly wounded in leg, Curly Allen in shoulder.

THE REBELS CEASE FIRING.

2 p. m.—The rebels fire has gradually ceased. The troops, however, are still keeping up a scattered fire along the line, gradually slackened until 5 o'clock, when only a few dropping shots were heard. No more of our troops are hurt. Wm. Bruce, lately a prisoner of Riel's, but who escaped on Tuesday, was brought in by scouts. He says that Riel's force is little over four hundred, half of whom were on the other side of the river when he left. He also says that when the ammunition was served to the rebels only one keg of powder remained; bullets were also scarce. Women and children had been sent to the other side of the river.

PRISONERS ARE SAFE,

so far as he knew. Beardy is not with Riel, but has been sent for. Riel, Dumont, Garneau and other leaders are in Riel's camp.

WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

6 p. m.—Bolton's horses have gone back to our camp to bring up all the wagons and supplies. We camp here to-night. Gen. Middleton being determined to take the position. Capt. Young has just climbed to the roof of the church and descried a body of rebels on the level near the river bank about a mile away. The Winnipeg battery was ordered out and sent several well directed shells, scattering them immediately. Firing has now entirely ceased, but may be resumed at any moment. No news has been received from the steamer, but she keeps blowing her whistle; hence it is concluded that she is safe. The sound apparently comes from two or three miles down the river. Early in the morning crowds of women, children and mounted men were seen hurrying into the bush on the other side of the river. The weather was warm and bright all day.

THE FIRING RESUMED.

6.30 p. m.—A body of rebels has just opened fire from the bluff near the ravine on our left front, evidently on our skirmishers. They have fired three volleys, but are shooting too high to reach us. The Winnipeg battery, resuming, in the distance, where a large number of rebels are gathered. A second shell crashes through the first house, and the rebels rushed out; another shell blows the roof off the house beyond. As dispatches leave, scattered firing is going on. Expect to clean out the rebels to-morrow, and communicate with boat later.

ARE SHELLING HOUSES

Excitement in Montreal.

MONTREAL, May 10.—Much excitement exists here over news of the engagement at Batouche, and reports displayed on the bulletins at hotels are eagerly canvassed.

Feeling at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, May 10.—The feeling here over the news from the Northwest to-day is intense. The papers have issued extras, giving accounts of the battle. The newspaper offices were crowded all day, and the fight was the sole topic of conversation. It is understood the Government have received a report confirming the news received by the press.

Another Fight Raging.

WINNIPEG, May 10.—Reports from the front are to the effect that a battle between Middleton's forces and Riel at Batouche has been raging since yesterday morning. It began by cannonading the log and earthworks of Riel by Middleton's artillery corps. The result so far is understood to be a drawn battle. An attempt will probably be made when the works are reduced to storm the position simultaneously from front and flank, when frightful fatalities are likely to result, as the enemy are well armed and deadly in aim. Details later.

How They Should be Fought.

ST. PAUL, May 10.—Gen. Crooks, one of the heroes of the Minnesota Indian wars and Judge of the Military Commission that condemned 300 Sioux to death, 38 of whom were hanged at Mankato shortly after the massacre there, was interviewed by an Associated Press reporter this evening, as to the outlook for a general Indian uprising in the Northwest Territories, because of his familiarity with Indian character. He says Middleton must achieve a decisive victory or all the Indians will have on war paint in a week. Should the half-breeds achieve a signal victory over Middleton the result could be but most disastrous. He said the best plan of attack from this distance of observations would be to weaken the works by shot, scatter the half-breeds by shell from front and flank, have Irvine fall in upon their rear with his 300 Mounted Police, force the enemy into disorder, mass them if possible, then rake them with Gatlings, rifles, shot and shell until disordered, then storm their works. This would doubtless cost many good lives, as the enemy are nervy, and fine shots, being trained hunters, but the end to be obtained is so desirable and necessary that troops must be sacrificed, otherwise the whole country would be swept by the savages, who are liable to go on the war path on the principle of throwing their lives away, in which case they would spare no women or children. He added: Whatever grievances the half-breeds may have, when they incite merciless savages they are entitled to no sympathy from Christian civilization.

AIDED FROM OUTSIDE.

Master Minds from Chicago, Boston and New York in the Field.

Six Thousand Indians and Fifteen Hundred Half-Breeds on the War Path.

Special to THE TIMES.

ST. PAUL, May 10.—In an interview with the Associated Press reporter tonight, John McLane, of Bismarck, who has just returned from Winnipeg, where he has been delivering horses, teams and supplies to the Canadian Government, said the Government had advices that men from Chicago, New York and Boston are with Riel, and that a master mind not Riel's is directing the movements of the half breeds. Old timers regard Middleton's success at Batouche as absolutely necessary to prevent an Indian uprising which would be disastrous. Supplies are short, and about all must come from this side of the line. North Dakota is now being drained of horses, hay, oats, &c. It is believed about fifteen hundred half breeds are in the field; six thousand Indians are ready to take the warpath, and there are but four thousand troops to oppose them.

Turned out of Gen. Middleton's Camp.

It appears that the war correspondent of the Toronto Globe and Winnipeg Free Press, who have been working jointly, have written matters which caused hostility in Gen. Middleton's camp. The General has refused these gentlemen to follow his camp. The Globe, in referring to the expulsion of its correspondent from General Middleton's camp, says: "We resent in, supposing a piece of the smallest trickery and most contemptible tyranny on the part of the Dominion Government possible to conceive. The Government has from the first done its best to turn this rebellion to profit to the railway party and its hangers-on. We can tell the Dominion Government that they are as far as ever from gagging the Globe, and we defy them to accomplish their purpose."

Now Ready.

The B. C. Directory for 1885, just issued by R. L. Williams, Publisher of the work, contains over [illegible] pages of information, and the Province is so large that it should be kept as a book of reference in every business house and residence in the Province.

LONDON, May 11.—Lord Hartington, Secretary of War, stated in the House of Commons this afternoon that a decision had been reached by the Government in regard to the Soudan which practically involved the abandonment of an advance on Khartoum.

Trial of Dynamiters Cunningham and Burton.

LONDON, May 11.—The trial of Cunningham and Burton for alleged complicity in the dynamite outrages at Westminster Hall and the Tower of London, began this morning in Central Criminal Court before Sir Henry Hawkins. Very little public interest is manifested in the trial. A panel of one hundred jurymen was summoned from which to secure a jury for the trial. The defence allowed 35 challenges but only fifteen men were objected to before a jury was obtained. After the jury had been sworn in Attorney-General James opened the case for the prosecution. He stated that they expected to prove that Cunningham was guilty of causing the explosion at the Tower, as well as the other outrage at Victoria Railway station.

An Agreement Perfectly Satisfactory to England, Russia and Dufferin.

LONDON, May 11.—Granville, in the House of Lords this afternoon, in replying to interrogatory questions put by the Marquis Salisbury, the Conservative leader, said the Government is unable at present to make any statement about their intention respecting the Soudan. In regard to the Afghan boundary question Earl Granville said a conference had been held between himself, Earl Kimberly, Secretary for India, and Baron Dufferi, the Russian Minister at London, which resulted in an agreement perfectly satisfactory to England, Russia and Earl Dufferin.

An Administration to be Established in Dongola.

LONDON, May 11.—In the House this afternoon, Lord Hartington, continuing his remarks, said the Government had resolved to make Wady Halfa the most advanced position, as a permanent defence of Egypt. British troops would be withdrawn as soon as the Nile rises. It is expected that the rising will occur about the end of May. The withdrawal of the troops involves abandonment of engagement to advance to Khartoum. This statement was received with cheers from the Government benches. Efforts are to be made, said the War Secretary, to establish an administration in the Province of Dongola and to complete the Nile railway as a commercial enterprise.

Gladstone Announces a Satisfactory Arrangement.

LONDON, May 11.—Mr. Gladstone announced that he was about to lay before the House of Commons some most important papers in regard to the foreign policy of England in her relations with Afghanistan. Mr. Gladstone then stated that an arrangement had been effected between Earl Granville, Foreign Secretary, Earl Kimberly, Secretary for India, Baron De Stael, Russian Minister to England, and M. Lessar, special Russian agent at London, in regard to the Afghan frontier, that this arrangement was satisfactory to Her Majesty's Government and to Earl Dufferin, Viceroy of India. He hoped the arrangement would be made subject to convention with Russia.

Death of Hans. Hiller.

Recall of the Turkish Minister.

VIENNA, May 11.—It is stated that Fehmi Pasha's recall is due to the influence of the Turkish Minister at St. Petersburg, and the Russian Minister at Constantinople, who believed recall would have good effect on settlement of the Afghan difficulty.

The Ameer on the Boundary.

SIMLA, May 11.—According to the report in circulation here the Ameer has bound himself to insist upon frontier passing through those points the cause of which the Government refuses to disclose. Pendjeh, however, is not one of the places. The Ameer desires the joint boundary commission to examine Oxus valley also.

Sebastopol to be Garrisoned.

SEBASTOPOL, May 11.—It is reported that a permanent garrison of five thousand men will be stationed at Sebastopol.

Dufferin Remains Silent.

CALCUTTA, May 11.—An official statement from Earl Dufferin approving of Lord Ripon's policy would be rash to announce the public here, but the silence remains silent.

Germany Imposes a Duty on Wheat.

BERLIN, May 11.—The Reichstag to-day voted in favor of the proposal to make the duty on wheat fixed duty.

Railway Plant Diverted.

ODESSA, May 11.—The railway plant which had been collected for a Russian line from the Caucasus to the Black Sea, has been diverted to the construction of a straight line from Vladekaukaz to Petroffski, on the Caspian Sea.

Appointments for Congo and Bombay.

VIENNA, May 11.—A Brussels dispatch to the Politche Correspondent says Huntley Stanley has been appointed Governor of the Congo States; also that Herr Reihwald, Consulate at Bombay, will be made Minister of Commerce, and Herr Neuss Minister of Finance for that country.

Ice in the Gulf.

QUEBEC, May 10.—There are about two dozen steamers now due here, one, two and even three steamers of some of the lines being behind time. Such an occurrence has hitherto been unknown in the history of this port. From all accounts ice in the gulf is unusually heavy, and blocks the usual gulf route to this port. It is generally anticipated that in addition to the steamer Helvetia, a number of other vessels will be found to have met with rough treatment by the ice.

ANOTHER STEAMER LOST

A White Cross Line Steamer Goes Down.

Four Steamers Lost in Four Years—An Unfortunate Company.

Special to THE TIMES.

HALIFAX, May 11.—The White Cross line Belgian steamer Helvetia, with a general cargo, which started from Antwerp April 23d for Montreal, sank off Scatterie, Cape Breton, on Saturday. This is the fourth steamer which that line have lost in as many years. The steamer August C. Andre sailed from New York for Antwerp and was never heard of, in the fall of '83; the Herman Ludwig sailed from Montreal for Antwerp with a crew of 30 men and a cargo, and that was the last that was heard of her. Only thirteen months ago the Daniel Steinmann crashed on the Rocks at Sambro Islands, and 124 lives were lost. The Helvetia makes the fourth vessel that has met with disaster. A rather remarkable coincidence is that Captain Schoonhaven, who commanded the Daniel Steinmann, was also in command of the Helvetia, and this was the first passage across the Atlantic which he has made since the wreck of the Steinmann. The Helvetia arrived in the Gulf of St Lawrence over a week ago, and has been knocking about in the ice for seven or eight days. Her bows were stove in and she was otherwise damaged by the ice. She was leaking badly, and on Friday Capt. Schoonhaven left Cape Ray and bore up for Sydney, having all he could do to keep the ship afloat. On Saturday a heavy sea sprung up, and he hailed the Allen Line steamer Arcadian, which was passing. The Arcadian took the Helvetia in tow and headed for Louisburg, but had not gone far before Capt. Schoonhaven called he was sinking. Boats were lowered and the passengers and crew got into them as soon as possible, but none too soon. The last boat hardly got clear before the Helvetia careened over and sank. The steamer Arcadian then put back to the Strait of Canso and landed the survivors at Port Hawkesbury

THE FRANCHISE BILL.

A Continuous Session of Fifty-Seven Hours and no Progress Made.

An Ottawa dispatch of the 4th says that the Opposition are showing a determined hostility to several clauses in the new Franchise bill. The Government is strong in its support in the House, and will not consent to any amendments, nor even will its followers discuss the merits of the act. The session which began last Thursday afternoon, sat continuously till 12 o'clock on Saturday night, a session of fifty-seven hours, the longest yet on record. On Friday morning at 4 o'clock the Opposition offered to allow seventeen interpretation sections to pass on condition that the committee rise. Sir Hector Langevin indignantly refused, saying that the Government was strong enough to force the measure through. The clause under discussion was the one enfranchising the Indian. Sir John said that when the Territories were given representation the Indians on the reserves could vote, even Poundmaker, Big Bear and Pi-a-pot. The Opposition took decided exception, contending that no Indian should be given a vote unless free to exercise it, and in control of full civil rights as white men. The Government supporters refused to discuss the question, hoping to exhaust the Opposition. The Opposition sarcastically pointed out that the Government refused to give women the vote while extending it to the red-handed murderers of women and children. At eleven on Saturday morning, Mr. Patterson, of Brant, renewed the motion that the committee rise, when the Government again refused. After six on Saturday the Government put up Landry, Bronsk and Foster to reply. They took up time till half-past eleven. Sir John then spoke till ten minutes to twelve, expecting to wind up the debate, but to his surprise Mr. Blake jumped up for the first time, and for the remaining ten minutes made a brilliant speech amidst the cheers of his followers and the enthusiasm of the crowds in the galleries. The motion that the committee rise was carried, and the House adjourned. The Government having refused to allow a single seventeen sections to pass, no progress has been made.

NOT AS IT SHOULD BE.

Several regular church-goers in the city—and there are a considerable number of them—have noticed the studied silence on the Northwest rebellion, of some of the officiating clergymen when petitioning the throne of grace. There are now some four thousand young men of Eastern Canada, the flower of the citizen soldiery of the Dominion, on the wide-stretching plains that lie to the east of our Province, valiantly fighting the battles of our common country. They are in a hostile land, surrounded by barbarous Indians and semi-savage half-breeds, whose overwhelming numbers, assisted by their undoubted bravery and treachery, may compass the destruction of hundreds, yes, possibly thousands, of valuable lives. Is there any efficacy in prayer, or does the patriotism of our religious instructors begin and end with their own congregations? We have prayers for rain, for the recovery of sick people, for the temporal and spiritual prosperity of all God's people, etc. But it yet remains for a Victoria clergyman to ask the God of Battles to protect the lives of our brave volunteers and bring victory to their arms. Far be it from us to dictate, or even suggest, to our reverend friends, what subjects should constitute their public appeals to the Omniscient One; but the omission is such a painfully conspicuous one, and has created so much surprise in the minds of those who believe that "the prayers of the righteous availeth much," that we are unwillingly forced to the opinion that either our clerical friends have no faith in their own supplications being answered, or are utterly indifferent as to the consequences that may flow from the present grave crisis.

THE Winnipeg Sun says that at last some light is being thrown upon the Ouimet mystery. It appears that both COL. OUIMET and ARTOT are Chapleauites and opponents of COL. CARON as minister of militia, who is the dominion leader of the latter faction. The Chapleauites say that fighting against half-breeds is intensely unpopular in Quebec, and that to do so means political suicide. They boldly insinuate that the effect of COL. CARON'S selecting the regiments commanded by COLS. OUIMET and ARTOT for active service will be to kill them politically and to remove from his path two prominent Chapleauites. Altogether it looks as if the breach between MR. CHAPLEAU and the Castors were widening.

IF the statements of the London Standard can be relied on the Russian fleet is much more formidable on paper than on the open sea. Her great ironclads are not likely to be very dangerous in fair fight against our own; but she has some swift unarmored cruisers that might do much damage to British commerce.

ALTHOUGH SIR LEONARD TILLEY has somewhat recovered from his recent illness he has not yet been in the Commons. It is doubtful whether he will be able again to resume his duties as Finance Minister. Meanwhile MR. MACKENZIE BOWELL, the Minister of Customs, is endeavoring to fill his place.

NOTWITHSTANDING the Northwest rebellion the emigration movement to Canada has begun. Seventy arrived in Montreal on Wednesday, and after a short delay proceed on their journey to the west and the northwest. They were chiefly well to-do farmers.

MR. HENRY IRVING has been received back to London in a most hearty manner. A banquet was tendered him at the Criterion and the Earl of Wharncliffe presided. The compliment to England's great actor was well merited.

OWING to the Federal bank bill having received royal consent, the bank is enabled to pay the regular half-yearly dividend on the 1st instead of the 15th of June. It is three per cent for the half year.

DEPUTY GOVERNOR RICHARDS attended the Senate a few days ago, and gave the royal assent to thirty-nine bills which had passed both Houses.

GOVERNMENT RELIEF FOR THE C. P. R.

The following is the full text of the resolutions to be proposed in the Commons with the view of granting relief to the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, a synopsis of which already appeared in THE TIMES some weeks since:

1. That the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, under the authority of its shareholders, as provided by the 28th section of its charter, may issue and deliver to the Government first mortgage bonds to the extent of $15,000,000, bearing 5 per cent interest, such bonds to constitute and be a first item and charge on the entire property of the company, real and personal, now owned or hereafter to be acquired or owned by it (save and except the lands granted or to be granted by the Government to the company under the said contract), including its main line of railway, with its tolls and revenues, the extensions thereof, its branch lines of railways (except the Algoma branch), the whole of its equipment, rolling stock, and plant, and all its steamers and vessels, saving always, however, the rights of the holders of the existing mortgages on the extensions of the line of railway from Callander to Brockville and Montreal, as security for the unpaid balances of the purchase money of the said extensions.

2. That the company may secure the payment of the said bonds, and of the interest thereon, by a deed of mortgage executed by the company to trustees to be approved by the Government, with the authority and of the tenor and purport and conditions, remedies, provisions and powers authorized and provided for by the 28th section of the charter of the company, to such extent and in such manner and form as shall be approved by the Governor-in-Council.

3. That upon the issue and delivery of the said bonds to the Government, the lien and charge created by the Act 47th Vict., chap. 1, entitled An Act to amend an Act respecting the Canadian Pacific Railway Company and for other purposes, upon the railway and property of the company affected by the said bond and by the deed of mortgage securing the same, shall cease to exist and shall be released and discharged in respect to the railway so affected, and the shares in the capital stock of the company to the extent of $35,000,000 now in the hands of the Government shall be cancelled and destroyed. But the Algoma branch shall still remain charged with the lien and the charge created by the said Act.

4. That the time for the payment of the entire loan to the company of $29,880,912 shall be fixed at the first day of May, 1891, and so long as default shall not occur in the payment of the principal or interest at the times when they shall respectively become due, the interest upon the said loan shall be computed at the rate of 4 per cent per annum. But the company may at any time pay the amount of the said debt, or any part thereof, in sums of not less than $1,000,000, and if such payment be made on account of the sum of $20,000,000 hereinafter mentioned, a corresponding amount of bonds shall be returned to it.

5. That as security for the payment of $20,000,000 of such loan and of the interest thereon the Government shall hold and retain $20,000,000 of the said first mortgage bonds, and in respect of such bonds shall have all the rights of bondholders, except as to the rate of interest as provided in the last preceding section, and upon payment of any half-yearly installment of such interest, the half-yearly coupons attached to the said bonds, corresponding to such half-yearly payment of interest, shall be cancelled and surrendered to the company. But if the company make default in the payment of the interest on the said sum of $20,000,000, or of the principal thereof at the time when the same shall become due respectively, the rate of interest on the whole loan shall thereafter be computed at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, and such default shall be equivalent to a default in the payment of the interest on the said bonds, and shall entitle the Government to the same remedies as if default had been made in the payment of the interest or principal of the said bonds, and upon the company remaining in default in respect of either the principal or interest on the said $20,000,000 for a period of twelve months, the trustees shall be authorized and empowered to take possession of the property mortgaged and to administer the same for the benefit of the bondholders generally.

6. That as security for the payment of the said loan, amounting to the sum of $9,880,912, and the interest thereon, the Government shall have a first lien and mortgage subject to the outstanding land grant bonds, and the whole of the unsold lands forming the remaining part of the company's land grant earned, and to be hereafter earned, such principal and interest to be paid out of the net proceeds of the sale of such lands and the Government shall continue to hold and retain the entire amount of land grant bonds now in its custody and possession as provided by the said Act, and if the net proceeds of such sales to be made from time to time in due course shall be insufficient to pay the interest on the said last mentioned as the same shall fall due, or the principle thereof, when the same shall become due, the Governor-in-Council may order the sale by the trustees of such lands or any part thereof, in such manner as shall be fixed by such order, in satisfaction of the interest or principle in respect of which default has occurred, and after the sale of the whole of such lands, any deficiency in the proceeds thereof to pay the amount charged thereon, shall be a charged upon the company's entire revenues, after providing for its fixed charges and by preference over the shareholders, and no further or other charge shall be created on the property mortgaged as security for the said first mortgage bonds until the said sum of $9,880,912 and interest, and also the said sum of $20,000,000 and interest shall have been paid in full, and after payment out of the proceeds of such lands of the outstanding land grant bonds and of the said sum of $9,880,912 and interest, the remainder of such lands shall remain charged with a first lien and privilege in favor of the government as additional security for the payment of the said sum of $20,000,000 and interest.

7. That the Government may make a temporary loan to the company of $5,000,000, to be repaid by the company to the Government on or before the 1st day of July, 1886, with interest at the rate of 4 per cent per annum, payable on the 1st day of July, 1886, the company to have the right to repay the said loan by instalments of not less than $1,000,000 each, and to receive on the payment thereof a corresponding proportion of the amount of said bonds held as security thereof, and after receiving the part of the said bonds to the amount of $8,000,000 to be held by the Government as security for the said temporary loan and to be delivered to the company on payment to the Government of the said sum of $5,000,000 and interest on the whole or in part, in proportion to such payment, the remainder of the said bonds shall be from time to time paid by the Government to the company, to be applied by the company under the supervision of the Government to the payment for work done or to be done, for the development, improvement, and extension of the railway, its connections and equipment, and for the maintenance of the credit and efficiency of the company generally, to the satisfaction of the Government; and if the bonds in the hands of the Government or any part thereof shall be sold by the company at a price satisfactory to the Government, the proceeds of such sale shall be paid into the hands of the Government in the place and stead of the bonds so sold, and such proceeds shall be dealt with as is hereinbefore provided with respect to the bonds they represent.

8. That the proportion to which the Government is entitled of the moneys realized by the trustees of the land grant bonds, and after the redemption of the land grant bonds, the proceeds of all sales of land granted or to be granted to the company under the contract, realized as provided by the said Act, shall be applied to the payment of the interest and principal of the said sum of $9,880,912, and after payment thereof in full towards the payment to the Government of the interest and principal of said sum of $20,000,000.

9. That the said Act of last session (47th Victoria, cap. 1,) shall remain in force, except in so far as it is affected by the provisions hereof.

10. That if at any time any line connecting with the United States system of railways shall be in course of construction at a point on the river St. Mary's, and there shall be a probability of the early completion thereof, and the company shall desire to continue the Algoma branch to a junction with such line, the Governor-in-Council may in his discretion and upon such conditions as they shall determine, order the release and discharge of the said branch from the lien and the charge thereon created by the said Act, and continued by this Act, and may by such order authorize the company to exercise in respect of the said branch the power of mortgaging the same in manner and form as provided by its charter with respect to mortgaging the main line thereof, to such an extent per mile as shall be fixed by such order, the proceeds of such bonds to be applied exclusively to the construction of the extension of the said branch to such junction.

RELIEF AT LAST.

In the House of Commons, on the 1st inst., the following question was asked by MR. REID, M. P., for Cariboo?

"Have complaints been made to the Government of excessive rates charged by the contractor on the Canadian Pacific Railway between Port Moody and Savona Ferry? If so, is it the intention of the Government to take such steps as will remedy the hardships complained of?"

To this query the HON. WM. POPE, Acting Minister of Railways, replied "that complaints had been made, but the Government was not yet in possession of the line. The contract time would expire on July 1st, after which the Government would see that there were no excessive rates charged." It is to be hoped the Government will redeem its pledge. It cannot interfere a day too soon. This announcement will be hailed with delight on the mainland.

BY THE GATE OF THE SEA.

A NOVEL.

By DAVID CHRISTIE MURRAY.

"Dead!" said the poet. "To be dead! Well, she's very attractive, and quite young. With such a fortune as he could leave her she won't be long without a husband."

"Fortune!" echoed Lorrimer. "She hasn't any fortune. Bless your soul, she's as poor as a church-mouse. Living in a boarding-house—and a very seedy boarding-house it is, I can tell you—just off the Strand."

"I suppose he made ducks and drakes of everything," said the poet. "My father had a place at Gorbay years ago, and they had a good deal of land in those days—the Tregarthens. Poor thing!"

The poet bold no malice, except for his reviewers. Outside his verses he was a harmless man, and had not the least desire to hurt anybody. He had long ago been able to forgive Mrs. Tregarthen for snubbing him, and he was sensitive to a tale of beauty in distress—as a poet ought to be.

Lorrimer told his story of the interview between himself and the lost star of the stage, and everybody agreed that the dead Tregarthen of Mr. Lorrimer's imagination was the last sort of person who had a right to have his dying wishes gratified. When the conclave parted and the poet walked into the Strand, he dived into the street Lorrimer had mentioned and read the door-plates with some little trouble in the gathering dusk until he came upon the boarding-house. He remembered the brilliant and stately creature who had swept so haughtily away from his impertinent presence at Tregarthen, and felt unhappy to think that she was housed in this frowsy caravanseral. He had seen her twice, and she had certainly ill-treated him, and yet he felt such an interest in her as few women had inspired him with. She was poor and in grief and a widow. Mr. Ronald Marsh left the street slowly and sadly, and thought how full of trouble was the world, and mused on Death and the Reviewers, and such grisly themes.

It was no business of any man's, but two or three people who knew him caught the poet in the act of leaving that street after dark, with a certain marked air of furtive adventure. If any hopes of seeing Mrs. Tregarthen again drew him that way, or if he merely went to moon in the neighborhood because it induced that curious sense of the abolition of moral responsibilities with regard to language which is so valuable to poets, would seem to be uncertain. When you relax your brains for the manufacture of verses, and allow them to flow out where they will, diffuse and devious, a remembrance of some person of the opposite sex serves as a sort of center for the tides, dissipating or rallying them quite apart from the will of the patient.

It had grown into winter-time, and the rainy night had fallen upon London, and the streets had a fungous odor in the rain, and were inch-deep in mud, when the poet, bearing his demon with him, slashed past the lodging-house—top booted, with his seedy overcoat picturesquely flapping and his long cloak picturesquely dying in the wet wind which blew up from the river. He was scathing a reviewer, and would have thrown his annual income into the Thames to have secured a stately rhyme to "viper;" but just as he passed the boarding-house door it opened, and the merest glance assured him that Mrs. Tregarthen stood there attired for the street. A second or two later the wind caught the door, and slammed it noisily. The poet moderated his headlong pace, paused and turned. Mrs. Tregarthen's tall and graceful figure went fluttering Strandward.

Ronald Marsh knew perfectly well that it is not counted a gentlemanly thing to follow a lady without her knowledge and consent, and he piqued himself on being a gentleman almost more than on being a poet. He did not think it honorable to dog a lady's footsteps, and it was no affair of his to know whither she was bound on foot on a night so inclement. While he thought thus he followed Mrs. Tregarthen, regulating his own pace to hers. This was shameful, and he turned away, but only for a second. When he looked again the fluttering figure was gone, though there was no opening on the street to right or left, and he had seen her outlined like a wavering silhouette against the Strand lights a mere fraction of time ago. A special puddle lay abreast of where he had last seen her, noticeable because it caught the lights of the bright street beyond and reflected them like a mirror laid asleant. He kept his eyes upon this landmark, and, though as he grew closer the light faded from it, he knew that he had not lost the place. He was sure—with a keener pang than anything but the reviews had hitherto caused him—that he had not lost the place; for where the wind-beaten figure had disappeared stood a swinging door, and above it the triune globes of gold. Poverty's storm-drum is mast high all the year round.

The young man drew into the shadow of a corner, and watched the door, with no memory of his scruples of half a minute back. It was not the business of the moment to analysize the motives which moved him, but they were nine-tenths made up of pity and a helpless wish to be of service. He had to wait in the wind and rain for full five minutes before the swinging-door opened, and Mrs. Tregarthen reappeared, heavily veiled, and ran against the beating wind to the door of the boarding-house, where she paused to use a latch-key, and then disappeared swiftly.

At the thought of youth, and grace, and genius brought to such a pass as this the poet was grieved, and he walked miserably away, not seeing how to be of use, but burdened with a heavy sense of the necessity for doing something. A man may be brimful of conceit, and may write bad verses, and yet have a good heart. He walked home and dressed for dinner, and dined moodily with people who laughed at him for being moody. Then he went, at a late hour, to the theater, and there encountered Lorrimer. He had something of a struggle with himself before he could take the manager into confidence, but at length he did it, swearing him to secrecy. Lorrimer heard him through with an expression of face bordering on the distracted.

"I don't believe a word of it," he said. "It's too good to be true. It's too romantic. It's—it's—by-and-by," said the manager, "I shall go mad. Come here, into the box-office. Look at this advertisement in the Times. Where are we? Oh, here it is. Read that."

The poet read—

"Miss Churchill is requested to claim her private fortune at the hands of Messrs. Lowe & Carter, of Clement's Inn.—A. T."

"Now," said Lorrimer, when Ronald Marsh looked wonderingly up at him, "what the Moses is it all about? These people, Lowe & Carter, were the lawyers who paid me my claim against Miss Churchill. She had money then, or she means of getting money, or she couldn't have left the stage and have paid my claim. Now, here she is in financial difficulties, running to the pawnbrokers—and I'll swear she's a lady, born and bred—and all the while she's asked in the newspapers to go and claim her private fortune! Because you know it's as plain as the nose on your face that it's the same woman.

"Who said Tregarthen was dead?" said the poet. "There are his initials."

"I said he was dead," returned Lorrimer. "She told me so." He was quite persuaded that she had done so. "It must be the same woman. Anyway, I'll tell you what I can do. I can go and see the lawyers and tell 'em her address. We have done business together already. Since I saw this advertisement I've had the curiosity to turn over the file of the Times, and I find that it's been published every day for nearly two months. I wish I could persuade her to come back to the boards. Unless her private fortune is a precious big one, I'd guarantee to double it for her. She's a perfect gold mine. There never was such a Rosalind, and I don't believe there ever will be such another."

The sense of romance and mystery which seemed to grow up about Mrs. Tregarthen helped to keep her in Ronald Marsh's mind, and he began to haunt the street she lived in, and, during the hours of darkness, to prowl about its neighborhood, until the police set watchful eyes upon him and booked him in their own minds as a person with an unlawful purpose.

Lorrimer wrote to the lawyers, asking if the Miss Churchill advertised was identical with the Miss Churchill in whose behalf they had done business aforetime. Receiving an answer in the affirmative, he supplied them with her address and waited to hear more. No news reached him until the poet turned up one evening, with greatly disturbed aspect, and announced that Mrs. Tregarthen and the little girl who lived with her had left the boarding-house, and had taken new lodgings in a street off the Tottenham Court Road—that both she and the child were poorly and scantily dressed, and that the house to which she now lived was fit only for the occupation of the very poor. Lorrimer went to the lawyers, begging to be enlightened. They, inquiring courteously into his right to claim enlightment and finding it to be non-existent, respectfully declined to satisfy him. He retreated, and had new conferences with the poet, who was melodramatically gloomy, and let fall deadly hints about villainy, and betrayal, and the wild justice of revenge, perplexing the bird by a hair's breadth when she made her final spring. It began to strike Lorrimer that Mrs. Tregarthen was a long while silent, and when, at last, he turned round, he raised a yell of dismay, for the poor lady had fallen back upon the bed, and pale and quiet as she lay there, that the manager, who was a bachelor, and knew nothing of women and their weaknesses, took her for dead, and rushed to the door with a tremulous call for the landlady. That great creature dispatched him for brandy, and, he being gone, she proceeded very calmly to examine the contents of the packet and the letter. The packet contained a prodigious quantity of manuscript and nothing else. From the letter she laboriously gathered (she could just read that Messrs. Bligg & Barker regretted that they could not see their way to the publication of—. A step on the stair warned her of the visitor's return.

"Look up, dear, dear creature," said the landlady, in audible solicitude. "Ah, that's it, my pore darlin'. You'll be nicely by-and-by."

Lorrimer sweated with anxiety while the landlady poured a few drops of brandy through the patient's lips, but in a few minutes Mrs. Tregarthen began to move and moan, and to click her teeth together, and then he was ordered from the room, and paced to and fro upon the fragmentary oil-cloth in the hall for the space of half an hour.

"How is she?" he asked in a whisper, when the woman at last came down stairs.

"She's had a good cry, pore dear," said the landlady, breathing neat brandy at him; "and now I've persuaded her to lie down. She'd better not be disturbed again for a hour or two."

"Of course not. Of course not," said Lorrimer, fidgeting with his watch-chain. "She has been very hard up, I'm afraid."

"Owes me three pound thirteen shillin' and sixpence for rent," returned the landlady, "and being but a pore woman myself, though with a feeling heart, I could not deny her nothing, and candles of a night extravagant."

Lorrimer was unhinged by the events of the morning, and for the moment he was half inclined to satisfy the landlady's claim upon the spot; but not having taken a final leave of his business senses, he decided against that course.

"Whatever the lady owes," he said, "shall be paid." He drew his purse from his pocket, and the landlady's eyes glittered. "Get her," he said, slowly and thoughtfully, with a half-sovereign between his thumb and finger—"get her something nice and tempting and nourishing against the time she wakes. No. Never mind, I won't trouble you. I'll get it myself, and bring it round in two hours' time."

He was gone, and the landlady was staring after him with the look the lean cat had cast after the plump escaping sparrow a while before.

Lorrimer was driven to Oxford Street, and on the way he used most terrible language without particular application. He had pity enough to fill him to the brim, and curious bewilderment enough, and (when it could beat out the others) managerial enterprise inflated him. For each of these profane language seemed to furnish the only escape-pipe, and the manager's speech would have been appropriate to a deep-dyed villain bent on murder. He halted the carriage at a shop-door, alighted, entered, and bought jellies and preserves, drove further and bought wine, drove further and bought fruit, a goodly pile, and a double handful of sweet-smelling country blossoms.

"Damme!" said Lorrimer, as he sat in the hackney-carriage and surveyed these purchases—"I'll win the jade's heart. I'll make her act. I'll make her so grateful that she can't refuse me."

A brilliant idea struck him, and he arrested the coach once more. He entered a shop, and when, after the lapse of some two or three minutes, he came once more upon the street, he wore the smile of a man who has just said checkmate to opposition. He unfolded the tissue paper which wrapped his latest purchase.

"That ought to touch a mother's heart," he said, surveying it admiringly. "Real coral. Real silver bells, and the finest india-rubber doll to be had for love or money."

He took all his purchases to the shabby house in the street off the Tottenham Court Road, and he waited with such patience as he could command until Mrs. Tregarthen was reported to be awake, and he could be again admitted to her room.

"A little trifle of jelly," said Lorrimer, balancing the preparation. "Calves'-foot jelly, my dear madam—a most nourishing jelly. I am never to be taken at a disadvantage. I carry a pocket corkscrew. Try that, madam. I guarantee it excellent. A little trifle for the baby, Mrs. Tregarthen. I am a bachelor myself, but I am told that children value such gauds."

The baby stretched out her hand for the bauble and Lorrimer surrendered it. The sense of his own goodness of heart was too much for him, and his eyes flooded at the end that he had to retire to the window, where he blew his nose and waved his pocket-handkerchief with an air of great nonchalance. But Mrs. Tregarthen knew why he retired, and she herself began to cry out of weakness and despair and gratitude, and Lorrimer blew his nose with violence, as if he were aggravated with it, and had a spite to wreak upon it. His emotion and his friendliness won upon the lonely woman's heart, and by-and-by he began to pour out golden promises upon her. She was silent for a long time, but at last he gave an alarm that he asked her the one question in his mind

PUBLISHED EVERY AFTERNOON EXCEPT SUNDAY.

Victoria, Monday, May 11, 1885.

CITY AND PROVINCE.

—Three sailors deserted from ships at Port Moody and found their way to Whatcom penniless.

—Ah Hong, charged in the Police Court with begging on the public streets, was allowed to go.

—The City nine defeated the Legal in the return match at baseball on Saturday by a score of 25 to 16.

—Six hundred Italian laborers were lately brought from the East to end of track to work on the railway.

—The lease for advertising on the C. P. N. Co.'s steamers and steamer Amelia is held by Mr. Munroe Miller alone.

—The frame buildings of W. Sterling, Alberni, were destroyed a week ago by fire, while Mr. Sterling was in Victoria.

—Mr. W. Cowper has been appointed purser of the Amelia in place of Capt. J. Glaholm, who takes command of the Daisy.

—Wm. Healy, charged in Police Court with being drunk, was fined $5 and $1 costs, and in default one week with hard labor.

—Mr. Thos. Pickard, a settler and merchant on Denman Island, was gored in the side by a cow on Friday, but not seriously.

—The shipping in the harbor of Nanaimo on Friday recalled bright visions of days of yore. There were nine steamers and steamships in port.

—The Yosemite made her first regular trip of the season to New Westminster to-day. She carried a large quantity of freight and a number of passengers.

—The Baptist congregation are contemplating the erection of a building in the city. A meeting will be held on Wednesday evening to decide the matter.

—Andrew Maloney, who was injured by a fall of coal a few days ago, in one of the mines, died at the hospital on Friday. He was a native of Ireland and single.

—Business in Police Court is very light these times, there being seldom anything more serious than a "drunk," which speaks very well for the morals of our city.

There will be a meeting of the Athletic Club to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock. Any one wishing to join is requested to hand his name to the Secretary, Mr. S. Oppenheimer.

—Peter McGinnis got drunk, and it cost him a $5 fine in the Police Court this morning. In default of payment, Peter will be imprisoned for one week with hard labor.

—Unless the order shall be countermanded, says the Port Moody Gazette, barracks will be constructed here shortly for the accommodation of several hundred military men.

A telegram was sent from Nanaimo to Mr. D. W. Gordon, in regard to the defences of the town, and the following reply was received: "The whole scheme for organization of the militia force of British Columbia is now receiving the attention of the Department of Militia."

—The new County Court Act, says the Free Press, and scale of fees, will come into force on Monday. The scale is a material reduction, especially in all matters in which the issue does not exceed $500. This also extends the jurisdiction of the County Court to probate and other matters.

—The Portland News says: "The hoary-headed old chieftain (of the Colonist), a paper which neither fears God nor the devil, and has small respect for men," etc. The Colonist endorses all the statements by copying the article without denial. Inferentially the Colonist says that its editor does not fear God. And all of us knows that he don't care for the devil.

—The funeral of the late Jenny Willis, who committed suicide in "No. 1," Broad street, occurred on Sunday at 2.30 p.m. Religious services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Percival. She was followed to her grave at Ross Bay by a number of the women of Broad street, who strewed the coffin with bright flowers, and liberally contributed to the expenses of the funeral.

—The Colonist, referring to the suicide of Jennie Willis, says the "circumstances are of the most disgraceful character, and brand the man who was seducer and friend as a heartless scoundrel." The language is not too severe. There was a cause, other than a natural or accidental one, for the poor creature's death, but it was not ascertained. The investigation, and particularly the examination of the witness Bennett, should have been more thorough. His relations with the unfortunate woman should have been sifted to the bottom.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Dr. F. W. Foster, J. P., and family left to-day by the Yosemite for Clinton, where they intend residing for some time.

Mr. James Orr, M. P. P., returned home to-day on the Yosemite.

Mr. Baldwin, of THE TIMES, and Mrs. Baldwin, went up by the Yosemite to-day, for a few days' visit to New Westminster and Port Moody.

Capt. Cushing, formerly in the stevedoring business on the sound, has charge of the unloading of vessels at Port Moody with cargoes of railroad iron for the Canadian Pacific.

Mr. York and family left this morning via the N. P. R., for England, where they intend to reside in the future. Mr. York has been a citizen of Victoria for the last 25 years, having only been absent for a short time on a visit to his native land some nine years ago. For the last eight years he has been engaged in the dry goods business in this city, four and a half of which he was senior partner in the firm of York & Lenz; but having sold out his share in the house to his late partner, Mr. Lenz, who will carry on the business in future. Mr. York will now engage in a commission trade in London, and has made arrangements to buy for several houses in this city. We are sorry to lose such a citizen as Mr. York has proved himself to be, and wish him and family bon voyage, and prosperity in his new venture.

Messrs. J. Dyer, of New York, and G. B. Gilbert, of St. Paul, are registered at the Driard.

Our Representatives Not to Blame.

NEW WESTMINSTER, May 8.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR,—You say it is surpassing strange that our representatives at Ottawa should support the Government on the new Franchise bill, and that their constituents will now anxiously await an explanation. Now, sir, you ought to be reasonable. The explanation is easy and obvious. What did we send representatives to Ottawa to do? To support the Government that would give us the C. P. Railway. It was openly declared, and insisted upon that we had nothing whatever to do with politics or principles in the eastern provinces, and that we must give up all differences of opinion on other questions among ourselves, for our salvation depended on the railway, and so we have done. When John A. was in power we all shouted for John A. When Mackenzie came in we did the same. When John A. returned we did the same, and we continue doing it. The tariff may be iniquitous; Oederdonk may be exorbitant; the Indians may be soon in rebellion; the Chinese may swamp us; the Dominion lands may be unsurveyed; Mr. Trutch may be our virtual ruler; the mail boats may run as they please; the snag boat lie idle; they may play at pitch and toss with the Railway terminus question etc., etc. No! Mr. Editor, there is no room for complaint. We have our bargain. We trampled upon principle and political decency. In other words, we sowed the wind and we are reaping the whirlwind with a vengeance. It is too late to roll over the blame upon our representatives, or the Dominion Government. CENTUS.

THE FORCE IN THE FIELD.

Position and Strength of the Force in the Northwest.

The following from a Winnipeg exchange shows the position of the troops in the Northwest a few days ago. With the aid of a map, our readers will more readily understand any future movements that may be mentioned, or the particulars of any battle that may be fought, by retaining this list:

At Emerson and Birtle—Two local companies of 40 men each.

At Yorktown, the capital of the York Colonization Company's settlement—Two companies under Captain T. C. Watson of Ottawa.

At Regina—One local company of 40 men.

At Fort Qu'Appelle—The Quebec School of Cavalry, 35; 91st battalion, Winnipeg, Colonel Scott, M. P., 400; a squad of mounted scouts; Winnipeg Cavalry, 60; 35th battalion, under Colonel O'Brien, M. P.

At Humboldt—Governor General's Body Guard, under Colonel Dennison, 80.

At Swift Current—Halifax Provisional Battalion, under Lieutenant-Colonel Bremner, 385; Midland Battalion, under Colonel Williams, M. P., 400; 7th Battalion, London, 260; 50 surveyors under Mr. Dennis, and one hospital corps, the whole under command of Major-General Laurie.

A squad of mounted police at Maple Creek and Medicine Hat, on the Pacific Railway.

At Fort McLeod—97 police.

At Calgary—A local company of 40 men; 9th Battalion, Quebec, Col. Amyot, M. P., 350; 25 Mounted Police and a corps of scouts, the whole under General Strange.

Forty miles north of Calgary, on the trail to Edmonton and pushing to the relief of that place, are four companies of the 92nd battalion under Col. Osborne Smith, and 25 Mounted Police, while still further north, about 12 miles from Calgary, and 80 from Edmonton, are the 65th battalion under Col. Hughes, 25 Mounted Police and 50 scouts.

At Battleford there are 90 police, two companies of the 35th battalion, 80; Ottawa Sharp Shooters, 40; Queen's Own Toronto, 250; one-half Toronto Infantry School, 40; B Battery, Kingston, 120; and a local company, 40, the whole under command of Col. Otter.

At Prince Albert there are 230 Mounted police under Col. Irvine, and 200 armed settlers.

Finally, with Gen. Middleton, A Battery, Quebec, 100; one-half of the Toronto Infantry School, 40; Boulton's cavalry, 60; 90th Battalion, Winnipeg, 300; 10th Royals, Toronto, 240; Winnipeg Field Battery, 50, and 35 cavalry scouts.

The total strength of the force now in the Northwest thus detailed is 4,580, exclusive of some 250 scouts and cowboys, of whom 235 are cavalry and 300 artillery with six guns and two gatlings.

FAREWELL DOES NOT FARE WELL.

The Town Destroyed by Fire—Loss $40,000—Big Forest Fires.

A dispatch received yesterday from Kamloops says that the town of Farwell was totally destroyed on Wednesday afternoon. Estimated loss, forty thousand dollars. Wright's houses on west side of the Columbia, were saved after two days exertion. Large numbers of ties belonging to the C. P. R. have been burned, and much valuable timber has been destroyed.

The Pioneer Steamer of the Upper Columbia.

Referring to the trial trip of the Kootenai, a writer says that Captain Pingstone, who, to use the expressive phrase of one of the crew, has got the river down to a "fine point," handled her admirably, making the journey in capital time. The trip was altogether a most enjoyable one. It would be difficult to conceive a more invigorating or pleasant mode of putting in a holiday to the tired denizen of a city than by taking the trip from Little Dalles (this point is in direct communication by fast mail with Spokane Falls) to Farwell, by the steamer Kootenai; that is, of course, providing she obtains a permit to carry passengers. The country abounds in game of all kinds, including deer, cariboo, mountain sheep, bear, both grizzly, brown and cinnamon, and any quantity of the smaller kinds.

Navigating the Columbia.

The Columbia river, where the steamer Kootenai runs, will novelize a good navigable stream, especially in low stages of water. Even now the little steamer has to be lined over some of the swiftest rapids by means of a steam capstan. Some idea can be formed of the river when it is understood that it requires about 30 hours to run the 200 miles up the stream, while the same distance down stream is made in 11 hours. There would be some uneasiness on a craft running at that speed should she happen to accidently strike a boulder.

A Decided Contrast Between the East and West.

A St. Paul dispatch of the 7th inst. says: A snow storm is general throughout the northwest. Seeding is retarded, but there is no great damage to vegetation, as it is not far enough advanced to suffer much. Ice an inch thick formed at Yankton, Dakota. Fruit buds are frozen. There is an inch of snow at Fargo. The wind is forty miles per hour and the thermometer is 21 above zero.

ANOTHER BRAVE CANADIAN GONE.

Colonel Kennedy of Winnipeg Dies in London of Small Pox while Returning Home.

The Governor General received the following cable on the 3d instant:

"LONDON, May 3.—It is with extreme regret I have to report the death of Colonel Kennedy this morning of small-pox. You will convey to his family the expressions of my deepest sympathy at the loss of this gallant officer.

(Signed) SECRETARY OF WAR."

His Excellency telegraphed the sad news to the Colonel's family at Winnipeg. The Free Press adds that on receipt of the intelligence expressions of the deepest sorrow were heard on all sides. No man was ever more universally esteemed in that city than the deceased. The sad circumstances attending his death made it particularly painful. After a period of useful service in the Soudan, he was returning home when he was taken ill, to take part in the suppression of the Northwest rebellion. He was a native of Newcastle, Ont., and in the 48th year of his age. He joined the Red River expedition in 1870; was a great favorite of Sir Garnett Wolseley, who appointed him paymaster to the Soundan expedition. In private life he was the very embodiment of goodness and kindness. He leaves a widow and five children, two of whom are in the 90th battalion band, now at the front, while another is attending the military school at Kingston.

MARINE NOTES.

The new steamer Edith, purchased by Captain H. P. Beecher, is designed to take the place of the Evangel on the Townsend-Semiahmoo route. She is 130 feet long, with 24 feet beam, and is guaranteed to make thirteen miles an hour.

The bark Arcola, with 1700 tons of steel rails for the C. P. R., is due. She left South Wales ten days before the Cambrian Prince left Gravesend.

The bark Cambrian Prince, Captain Evans, 124 days from Gravesend, arrived in Royal Roads Sunday morning. She has a cargo of 1500 tons of steel rails for the Island Railway and 200 tons of general merchandise.

The steamer Sardonyx, Captain S. W. Buckman, 28½ days from Hongkong, arrived in port yesterday morning. While in Hongkong she went into drydock and had her bottom cleaned and painted.

The American ship Spartan, from Hongkong, is on her way to this port with a general cargo.

Wedding Bells.

On the 1st inst., at Cambridge, Penn., W. W. Dodd, Esq., merchant, of Stanley, B. C., and Mrs. Laura Beedy were married. Mrs. Dodd is sister to Mrs. Commodore Harrison, of Sancelito, and Mrs. James Hamilton, of San Francisco, California. The happy couple have our best wishes for their happiness and prosperity. Mr. Dodd and wife are expected to return to the Province in about four months, when their many friends will be glad to welcome them back.

Our congratulations are also extended to Mr. W. H. Dorman, of the P. O. Inspector's office on the occasion of his nuptials with Miss Jane Hamilton Dickson. The happy couple left by the Queen for San Francisco. We wish them a long and happy life.

Our Maple Leaves.

Mr. A. W. Ross, M. P., now in Ottawa, has received and posted for public admiration some maple leaves, which were sent to him from British Columbia. They were picked on the 11th of April and one of them measured ten inches across, and eight from the point of the leaf to its junction with the stalk. A gentleman present, fired with zeal for his province's reputation, protested that Ontario could do as well as that, and asked if there were not some maple trees near the buildings. On being answered in the affirmative, he was about to procure proof of his contention, but after a minute's consideration, decided to leave the question open till summer.

Bricklayers' Strike.

The bricklayers on the new theater building, numbering about nine, quit work this morning upon their employer refusing to increase their wages to $5 per day. They have been receiving $4 per day of ten hours work with nine hours on Saturday. Mr. Appouyi has telegraphed to Seattle and Tacoma and other places, and expects to have all the workmen he wants in a few days. In the meantime the work has stopped and the bricklayers are going about the streets with their hands in their pockets.

The Douglas Island Mine.

The Alaska, which left here a few days ago for the north, carried over 200 tons of machinery and plant for the Douglas Island mine. Colonel J. D. Fry of San Francisco, who is one of the company, was a passenger. He states that the ore will assay $6 to the ton and that there will be a profit of $2 to the ton. The unlimited quantity of ore, and the great ease with which it can be mined and milled, constitute its richness and guarantee its success.

THE COLUMBIA AND ARROW LAKE COUNTRY.

Magnificent Timber, Including Hemlock, Cedar, Spruce and Other Varieties.

A correspondent of the Portland Oregonian, who accompanied the Kootenai on her first trip, writes:

The appearance of the Columbia and the country adjacent undergoes a material change immediately above the Kootenai rapids. The river itself widens considerably and the current is less swift. The surrounding country is more picturesque, the mountains more precipitous, but there is a more varied assortment of timber, and an occasional stretch of low lying bench land. It was nearly sundown when we reached the lower Arrow lake, one of the most perfect stretches of water to be found anywhere in God's wide world. The scene in the still evening, the glorious sunset casting its golden path of rays on the clear, mirrorlike surface of the pale blue waters and glistening in a thousand prismatic colorings on the snow-clad mountains, the varied colorings of the vast forests around us, a perfect wilderness of harmony, the solemn grandeur of those stately monuments of time, the perfect stillness which pervaded the whole realm of nature—left an impression upon the beholder that can never fade from the memory. Aided by the light of the moon we traveled far into the night, and on reaching the head of the lake the Kootenai was moored for the night. On the following morning, Friday, May 1, we entered the narrow waterway of sixteen miles, separating the upper and lower lakes. The upper Arrow lake is a magnificent expanse of water, somewhat larger than the lower one; its total length being about forty miles, in many places four to five miles wide. The country about abounds in magnificent scenery. At noon we reached the head of the lake, having traveled the intermediate distance at a speed of thirteen miles an hour, and, passing over the sand bar, leaving the snow-clad saddle mountain (so called from its resemblance to the saddle used by the squaws in these parts), and the huge glacier to the north of it, we enter the river. The appearance of the country on each side of the upper river is again very different to anything previously observed. The banks are low-lying and swampy, covered with a rich growth of magnificent timber, including spruce, hemlock, cedar, "balm of gilead," hazel and the numerous varities of pine.
